

CLM Technology Terms

Down

1. a virus that eats up space
2. simplest way to exchange files between computers on the internet
3. the smallest unit of measurement of storage space on a computer
4. a database sublanguage used in querying, updating, and managing relational databases
6. digital signature issued to user - think network security
9. the last part of an internet address
13. 3.5" removable hard disk that can provide 100 mb or 250 mb of storage
16. google is an example of this
21. a type of network cable
25. used to separate a firm's public web server from its internal network
27. set of rules governing transmitting and receiving of data

Across

- | | |
|--|--|
| <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 5. acronym for the rules that computers use to initiate and break connections 7. instant messaging is an example of this 8. this is memory and it is temporary storage only. when the computer is off it is gone. the more you have of this the faster your computer is 10. forwards data from one network to another 11. the standard that facilitates the routing of traffic from one network to another 12. acronym for the command that informs a browser it will be locating and displaying a web page 14. a reserved segment of memory used to hold data while it is being processed 15. set of programs that manages the operation of a computer and all its applications 17. acronym - best format to transmit without changing the document 18. small helper program, norton antivirus is an example 19. web supersites like AOL - provides a variety of services | <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 20. divides bandwidth and joins communication lines together 22. memory chips that permanently store instructions and data 23. one billion bits 24. this results in less down time 26. refers to operating systems, applications and utilities 28. any hardware device connected to a computer such as a monitor 29. web site for internal use only 30. computer that allows different types of network protocols to communicate with eachother 31. acronym for the document format used on the world wide web |
|--|--|